

WE TURN TWO!

Two years ago, Solana Rice and Jeremie Greer set out to make people of color the protagonists of our economic story.

On March 4, 2019, we officially launched Liberation in a Generation, a national movement-support organization dedicated to building the power of people of color to totally transform the economy—who controls it, how it works, and most importantly, for whom.

We thank you for your ongoing support in the fight to dismantle the Oppression Economy and to move us all toward liberation.

Recent LibGen Highlights

Our team is growing!

For so long, it was just the two of us. And then there were six: We now have a Policy Director and a Director of Grassroots Relationships on our team, and we'll also be taking on a Communications Director next month!

We're confronting corporate concentration.

Monopoly power harms communities of color in disproportionate ways, but the anti-monopoly movement fails to center those who know best how to combat it: organizers of color. In collaboration with the Economic Security Project, we released "Anti-Monopoly Activism: Reclaiming Power through Racial Justice" on Tuesday, 3/16.

Distancing Racism

In December 2020, we released "Distancing Racism Beyond COVID-19: From Racial Exclusion to Radical Inclusion" to demonstrate that the real pandemic is and has always been systemic racism. We also wrote an article about it for The Forge.

Our work is not done until the Oppression Economy is over.

We are up against racial capitalism, and it's going to take bold leadership and clear narrative shifts to achieve a liberation economy in one generation.

Currently, we're working on another special issue of The Forge with Kandace Montgomery and Miski Noor of the Black Visions Collective in Minnesota. This issue will reflect on the 2020 uprisings—and help strengthen organizing efforts in 2021 and beyond. Please help support this work and more by giving today in celebration of our two-year anniversary.

Thank you for your solidarity and support,
Solana and Jeremie
